Captain General De Rodas Latest. HAVANA, March 29, 1870. Captain General De Rodas, on his arrival at Puerto

Principe, issued a proclamation, in the course of which he addressed the insurgents as follows:--Principe, issued a proclamation, in the course of which he addressed the insurgents as follows:—

I know most of you have been drawn into rebellion by force or fraud. Who are your chiefs? Where is your promised liberty? You were told that Spain could not spare soldiers for Cuba, and that those soldiers thirsted for blood, who now divide their daily rations with the women and children you have left behind, such falsehoods can only be temporarily effective. The Eastern Department and the Cinco Villas district are returning to peace, and while terror deprives you of your repose the Western Department enjoys security and trauquility, and the public welfare, credit and true liberty increases. The troops no longer needed in those districts will come to the mountains of the Central Department, and a war of which up to the present time you have had no idea will begin. I call on none of you for help, for I need none. The clemency of my predecessors was interpreted as weakness, and I do not incline to innisate them. But at the same time, although you are rebels to-day, I do not seek your lives, and advise you to submit in time to save yourselves; for as soon as operations have commenced in this Eastern Department they will be prosecuted with energy, let the end or what It may. All those who surrender their arms to any legitimate authority will be well received and their lives are hereby guaranteed. But from the benefits of this offer your principal leaders and the officers of the so-called Cuban government are excluded.

The Detroit River Tunnel-The Gauge of the Great Western Railway to be Narrowed. OTTAWA, March 29, 1870.

The Detroit River Transit Company's bill and the Great Western Railway bill are making good progress and promise to be carried through Parliament this session. Both have passed through the com this session. Both have passed through the committee and probably will not meet any strong opposition in the House. The first above-named bill provides for the construction of a tunnel under the Detroit river, which will enable the Great Western Railroud to make a direct junction with the Michigan Central. The undertaking will involve an outlay of $3,050,000. The work will probably be commenced at an early day. The Great Western bill authorizes the company to narrow the gauge of the road to the same gauge as the New York Central and Michigan Central, viz., four feet and eight and a half inches, which will allow freight and passengers to go through direct from New York to San Francisco on this line without change of cars.

The Late Murder Near Troy-Suicide of the Murderer. TROY, March 29, 1870. On Wednesday night of last week Nanning Vanderpeyden, a wealthy farmer, living a mile this city, was murdered in his barn about eight o'clock. His son-in-law, E. A. Alexander, reported that the murderer attacked him, after killing Mr. Vanderpeyden, hit him with an iron pump handle, broke his arm, and also cut him on the head with a knife. Suspicions were aroused that Alexander himself did the deed, and this afternoon at four o'clock, after writing a complete confession, he committed suicide by blowing his brains out with a shot gun. His confession states that he meditated murder for a year, and about four weeks ago intended to do it, but the presence of a negro frustrated his design. He says the Lord prompted him to do it. He tried to escape it, but could not, and thinks he has done no wrong. He asks the pardon of his wife, and hopes to meet her in heaven. He says he had no accomplice. o'clock. His son-in-law, E. A. AMUSEMENTS.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC-"OBERON."-The Parepa

Rosa English Opera Troupe last night surprised

every musician acquainted with their resources by a successful rendering of one of Weber's most difficult works-the spectacu ar and romantic "Oberon." It is now nearly forty-four years since this, the last of the gree composer's labors, was produced for the first time under his direction at Covent Garden, and we cannot give a reason for the comparatively small number of its representations everywhere unless on account of the difficult and com plicated nature of the music and the mise en scene required to place it stage in a fitting manner. Weber wrote it at the request of Charles Kemble, then manager of Covent Garden, from a libreito by Mr. Planché. The plot is from one of Wieland's poems, and comprises the adventures of Sir Huon of Bordeaux, the favorite of the King of the Fairles. The hero rescues the fair Reiza from the covert of Al Raschid, marries her and again comes to her aid after she had fallen into the hands of the Barbary pirates. We doubt it Weber bestowed so much care and study on any of his other works as he has on "Orden." He conducted it himself on the first night, after months of incessant labor in the renearsals, which afterwards prostrated him and taid him on his deathed. We are astonished that Alme. Rosa did not select it for the opening of the season at the Academy. It would have been then unnecessary to change the bill. The house was fairly crowded last night, especially in the parquet and dress circle, the boxes being in part untenanted. The success of the opera was complete and elicited enthusiasm even from the tey habitues of this opera house. Mine, Parepa-Rosa appeared as Reiza, an Oriental princess, the role in which Mrs. Wood, nee Mary Anne Paton, made such a furor thirty years ago, and Sir Huon, the part written originally for Braham, was sung by Mr. Castle. Mrs. Seguin appeared as Fatima, the companion of the princess, and Mr. Lawrence as Sherasmin, attendant of the knight. To Mine. Parepa-Rosa, whose peerless rendering of the grandest air that probably any opera could boast of—"Ocean, thou mighty monster"—atone would have made the opera a success, the first praise is due. She sang the trying monster —atone would have made the opera a success, the first praise is due. She sang the trying monster —atone would have made the opera a success, the first praise is due. She sang the trying monster —atone would have made the opera a furning little demanded. Mrs. Seguin made a charming little demanded. Mrs. Seguin made a charming little demanded. Mrs. Seguin made a charming little song which occurs in the first act is not in the German edition of the composer. The battle acted and sang the h vent Garden, from a libretto by Mr. Planché. The plot is from one of Wieland's poems, and comprises ing air written for him, and obliged the composer, at against Weber's inclinations. It was a little too much for the calibre of Castie's voice, but there was no mistaking his carnestness in the execution of it. Messrs. be solia and Hail were unexceptionable in their parts, and Miss Geraidine Warren made a very favorable impression as Puck. Much of the success of the opera is due to the admirable leadership of Mr. Carl Rosa, under whose batton both chorus, orchestra and soloises moved in perfect order, and to the clever stage management of Mr. Harry Jackson, who managed to make quite a respectable spectacle at very short notice. Miss Rose Hersec takes a benefit to-night in "The Black Domino." She is a highly deserving artist and merits the utmost appreciation of the public.

The lec-turer maintained the doctrine of the power of de-parted spirits to possess living beings, and referred to facts narrated in sacred and profane history in support of his assertions. The familiar spirits of those loved on earth must, in a mysterious manner, influence our movements on earth, and that the manes of souls departed cheer us on to good or beguile us into evil. Vocal and musical exercises varied the proceedings, and the attendance William Gibbons, aged sixteen, and William Bo sey, aged eighteen, both hatters, were arraigned before Justice Fowler, acting magistrate at Jefferson Market yesterday morning by detectives Dunn and Market yesterday morning by detectives Dunn and Glynn, of the Eighth precinet, upon complaint of their employer, Solomon Mayer, of No. 6 Wooster street, charged with stealing a quantity of silk plush from him on the night of the 25th inst., valued at $550. Mayer states Bosey secreted nimself in the store, and after it was closed at night unbotted one of the doors and let Gibbons in, when the two removed the property to a yard in the rear of the store, where it was found and restored to the owner. They both stated they had nothing to say in reference to the charge and were committed in default of $2,000 ball each.

The members of the Cuban League are working hard to render the mass meeting at Cooper Institute on Monday next a grand demonstration in favor of Cuban independence, and its effect cannot fail of impressing the Executive that something should be pressing the Executive that something should be done in favor of the "ever faithful isle."

A stated meeting of the League was held last night at the Spingler House, there being a large and influential attendance. General Graham called the members to order, and after ordinary business had been transacted Mr. Douglas Taylor, the energetic chairman of the committee on mass meeting, reported everything arranged and felt sure that the multitude which will flock to it on the 4th proximo will appreciate the efforts of the League. The meeting will be called to order, if possible, before eight o'clock P. M., and after a speech from the chair and the reading of the list of vice presidents a set of resolutions will be submitted by Coionel E. Allen. General Banks will then follow in a speech, and will be succeeded by Congressman Fitch. of Nevada, one of the finest orators in America; Fernando Wood, James S. Thayer, Mayor Hail, John Mitchell, Horace Greetey, Richard O'Gorman, C. M. Clay, Governor Hoffman and others, in short but vigorous speeches. Between each speech a patriotic song will be given by the club, and the seventy-first regument band will be matendance. After receiving the reports of several other committees and the thanks of the various Cuban organizations in New York the meeting adjourned.

IS BURKE STILL ALIVE?

Have These Men Been Murdered !- The Tranquility of the City Authorities Auxiety of the People.

POUGHKEEPSIE, March 29, 1870. Four well known persons have mysteriously disappeared from this city within a little over a month's time, and the people are just commencing to wake up in relation to the matter.

THE FIRST was a man named James Jaycox. On the afternoon of the 22d of February he came here from New Ham-burg, having on his person $1,000 in greenbacks. He was put to bed at the Forbus House in an intoxicated condition by a young man named Luckey. After remaining in bed a short time he got up and went out and at four P. M. was seen standing in front of a grocery store by officer Shields. Shordy after nine P. M. he put in an appearance at the ticket office at the depot, and asked Mr. White, the ticket agent, for a ticket for New Hamburg, intending to take passage on the milk train. The ticket agent informed him that the train was gone, when he walked away from the window, and, leaving the depot, has not been seen since. He is thirty-three years of age, five feet ten inches in height, and weights about 160 pounds. He wore red whiskers and red mustache, was attired in a blue coat and nearly black pantaioons, and wore a cap. His brother, Mr. Thomas Javoox, offers a reward of $300 for information of his whereabouts, dead or anve. He is confident that he has met with foul play in this city. He was a man who seldom visited any place except Poughkeepsie.

THE SECOND MAN disappearing in an unaccountable manner was abold resident named Abraham Stockhoim. He resided in Grandeli street. He left his home on the night of the 18th of March, going out after supper, saying he would not be gone long. Up to this time he has not returned, nor is there a man in this city who can say he saw him outside of his nouse that night after dark. It is thought he has countitied suicide.

THE THIRD MISSING PERSON
IS a young married man, twenty-three years of age, named Matthew Colwell. He was a farmer. He came in town a week ago with fifty dollars worth of eggs and sold them. He was last seen about dusk of the same day entering the Trement House, near the railroad depot, since which time no trace of him can be found. These mysterious disappearances, coming so quickly in succession, have excited a great deal of anxiety, and the people are beginning to ask questions of serious import, and although one would suppose the authorities would move in the matter, they, on the contrary, seem to take no notice of the matter whatever. It is confidently believed that two of the missing men have been murdered, and in view of such opinions many think it would be a proper movement on the part of Mayor Mergan to offer a reward for information concerning their whereabouts.

A COLORED LECTURESS.

Discourse at the African Methodist Episconal

Miss Anna Watson, one of a new generation of colored lecturers, who are to disabuse the minds of people of the idea that the colored people are inferior them to political social equality (f), delivered a semi-religious political lecture at the African Methodist Episcopal Bethel church, in Sullivan street, last evening. Her subject was the query, "Are we United" reterring to the condition of the colored people in the struggle for equality. In commencing the lecturer said sue was gratified because the number of persons present was an indication of the intelgence and desire for learning of her race. She declared that the colored people are not drifting backward, but rather are moving steadily forward, step by step, toward science and everything worthy the attention of American citizens.
The colored people should keep united in order to win those rights which such a civilized country as this and to which the Lord has given the power to bestow, denies them. We must move as did the colored soldiers of whom certain newspapers often say in derision, "the colored troops fought nobly"—at Port Hudson and Wagner Heights, unitedly and boildy. Such noble men as those volunteers I would have rule over this country instead of the selfish tyrants who ever have ruled it. Any of our people could reply to the query, "Where is our party going?" of our political opponents—that it is drifting down to dark oblivion. In concluding she said that her course in appearing as a lecturer had been condemned; but that having a real desire semi-religious political lecture at the African Metho our party going?" of our political opponents—that it is drifting down to dark oblivion. In concluding she said that her course in appearing as a lecturer had been condemned; but that having a real desire for the elevation of her race, she had determined to defy such condemnation and to persevere in her task.

A JERSEY DROWNING MYSTERY.

Late on Monday night the captain of the tugboat saunders appeared at the Newark police station and stated that as his vessel was near the draw of one of stated that as his vessel was near the draw of one of the railroad bridges crossing the Passaic river he saw a horse and wagon containing a man tumble over-board into the river. Efforts to rescue the unknown were made, but of no avail. Yesterday the spot was visited, but no vestige of the man discovered. The wagon was, however, found buried in the sand on the east side of the river, about midway between the plank road and Newark and New York Railroad bridges. Who the unfortunate man could be is still a mystery.
